Growers Sent Wheat Pgm. Notices

Notices have been sent to wheat growers of Appomattox County, transmitting 1965 wheat program information as applicable to the individual farm, J. A. Martin, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said today.

The notices list the 1965 farm wheat allotment, the farm's normal yield, the allocation for marketing certificates, the rate of the payment available for wheat diversion, and the loan or serving base established for the farm.

Farmers should study the notice information, Mr. Martin advised, in order to make plans regarding wheat before the 1965 wheat program signup ends on October 2.

Operation of the 1965 program generally will be about the same as for 1964, Mr. Martin pointed out, but some provisions have been modified. The program is again entirely voluntary and is more flexible, offering farmers a number of attractive choices.

The program offers payments for diverting wheat acreage based on one half the conservation support loan rate times the normal yield for the farm.

It provides for certificate payments on the normal production of wheat planted for grain. Domestic certificates are worth 75 cents a bushel on as much as 45 per cent of the farm's normal yield. Export certificates are worth 30 cents a bushel on as much as 35 per cent of the farm's normal yield.

Price support loans are available on 1965 wheat at $1.41 in Appomattox County.

Under the new program growers taking part in both the wheat and the feed grain programs may substitute wheat for feed grain or feed grain for wheat. There is also a provision for establishing a farm oats-rye base upon the farmer's request. Growers who want details on how the 1965 wheat program may apply to their operation should call at the ASCS County office in Appomattox.

Approve Road Budget

County Supervisors meeti n g Wednesday, Aug. 19, approved the 1964-65 Final Secondary Road Budget as presented by Resident Engineer C. M. Clarke and Assistant Resident Engineer E. M. McCraw. Clarke and McCraw reviewed road plans for the county.

The Clerk, Mrs. Aldah Gordan, read a summary of a special meeting with a representative of Hinnant, Addison and Hinnant to discuss the new heating plant for the Court House complex and a proposed addition to the Court House.

In the new addition space would be allocated for Judge or Commonwealth Attorney's office, a Jury Room, meeting room, and Sheriff's office, she said.

The engineers, Mrs. Gordon said, recommended that bids for this be offered sometime in February of 1965.

Check for Timber

J. C. Hays, State Forest Superintendent, Appomattox-Buckingham State Forest, presented a check for $5.00 to the county, the result of the sale of timber from forest land within county borders. One-fourth of gross proceeds from the sale of timber is divided equally between the two counties, Hays explained, and is given to the counties in lieu of taxes. State forests are self supporting, Hays said, with all operating costs paid from the remaining share of money received from timber sales.

The Clerk, Mrs. Gordon, told Supervisors of the need for duplicate voters' registration records in the counties. She spoke of the danger of loss by fire or other accident which might destroy the only records of registered voters, now held by registrars throughout the county.

Chairman Otho Martin asked her to look over various filing systems and to report on this later.

Approve Subdivision Ordinance

Supervisors gave tentative approval to a proposed Subdivision Ordinance being prepared by the Town of Appomattox. Provisions of the ordinance would include an area lying outside the town limits, extending two miles in all directions.

Sixteen Farmers Report Corn Silage Stack Method In County

If the drought of 1963 taught livestock owners only one thing, it was the value of corn silage. Another large group is making plans now to store silage for the first time.

There are many ways of storing this feed. One of the least expensive methods is to stack it on top of the ground and cover with polyethylene.

Last year, at least 16 farmers in Appomattox County used the stack method. This spring a questionnaire was mailed to those who had used this method. Ten replies were secured and this is what was found:

The sizes varied from 40 to 120 feet in length; 12 to 20 feet in width; and from 3 to 5 feet in depth. 663 tons were stored in this manner.

Four and one-half tons were stored per hour and several commented that this was important in that silage harvesting and tobacco harvesting conflict. Most farmers found that only one day needed to be allocated for storing of winter feed.

When asked, "How was the plastic held down?", most farmers reported using old tires; a few used baller twine with weights on each end spaced 12 inches apart.

Loss is always an imporant consideration, so they were asked to estimate losses. On an average, they reported a 4 per cent loss. This ranged from a high of 20 per cent to a zero. This would indicate that management is of particular importance in reducing spoilage.

This being a rather new technique for farmers in this area, the question was raised as to their reaction to this method for storage of silage. Here are their replies: "I like it", "Good", "Good if spoilage can be kept down on top", "It's a cheap way of putting up silage and I like it very much". One producer who had his stack 16 feet wide said, "I would want it deeper and not as wide". Only one reported that he did not like it. He felt it was difficult to pack the outside edges with a tractor.

When asked what they would do differently another year, these were typical comments: I wouldn't try so hard to keep the sides perpendicular", I hope to have one 100 feet long rather than 40 fet another year", "Plan to add limestone before covering with plastic", "Use more tires to hold down cover", add more silage to the stack".

The questionnaire finally asked for any additional comments. "It's inexpensive —stored well— the cows seemd to like it", "It's a fine feed, first time I ever fed silage", "We need a better method to keep air out once we start feeding. All of my spoilage was on the top after about one-fourth was fed", "A few acres fed a lot of cattle", "When I started feeding, I used a heavy log chain with weights on each end to prevent air from getting under the cover after the silo was opened."

There has been a great deal of interest throughout the entire tobacco area in herbicides for controlling weeds and grass in tobacco. Two demonstrations are located in the county for farmers to visit, County Agent Jim Smith reported today. They are on the farms of Clarence May and Leonard Garrett. Diphenamid is the chemical being used. It was applied to the tobacco on June 5th. The tobacco had been cultivated one time. A portion of these plots have not been cultivated since the herbicide was applied. Tobacco growers interested in controlling weeds with chemicals are invited to visit these demonstration plots.
